DRINKING THROUGH HISTORY

Southside | $14

Enjoyed on the Southside of Chicago during the 1920s. During this time bootleggers on the North side has access to superior spirits—and drank gin + ginger ale—while those in the South (like Al Capone) used lime and sugar to mask the taste of black market booze.

Single Barrel Gin, mint, lime, angostura bitters

12 Mile Limit | $12

The story goes that during prohibition, bootleggers would dock boats 12 nautical miles offshore where their illegal actions were outside the jurisdiction of the United States.

Heritage Cask Whiskey, white rum, cognac, lemon, grenadine

Tuxedo | $13

The Tuxedo Cocktail isn't named after the famous dinner jacket, but rather after a ritzy 1880s country club called the Tuxedo Club, America's "first planned exercise in gracious living".

Single Barrel Gin, Dolin dry vermouth, maraschino liqueur, orange bitters, absinthe

Sazerac | $15

Its roots can be traced to a New Orleans apothecary named Antoine Amedie Peychaud. From his pharmacy, he reportedly served customers a healing tonic of brandy mixed with a few dashes of his eponymous aromatic bitters

Heritage Cask Whiskey, peychauds, simple, absinthe
